The 7-Minute Market Forecast

US Strategy - Friday, March 4

Strategy

The Price of the VectorVest Composite (VVC) rose $1.04 per share this week and closed at $35.05 per share today. It has now gone up for the third consecutive five-day trading period and the Buy/Sell Ratio, BSR, closed above 1.00, on Tuesday, March 1st to issue a Confirmed Up, C/Up, signal. Although this uptrend was slow in developing, in that the BSR bottomed on January 20th, and didn't go above 1.00 until Tuesday, it currently is in a blast-off phase. We need to watch this carefully. If the Price of the VVC goes up and the BSR does not, we will know that the rally has begun to lose momentum. Let's enjoy the rally while it lasts. With three green lights and an UpUp situation, the Color Guard is Bullish.

CA Strategy - Friday, March 4

Strategy

After clocking a gain every day, the Price of the VVC/CA added another week to its winning streak, rising $0.46 per share to close at $17.53 per share. All of our other key indicators, the RT, BSR and MTI, moved significantly higher as well, all closing the week in favorable territory. On Tuesday, March 1st, the two-week movement in the Price of the VVC/CA was confirmed by the MTI closing above 1.00, issuing a Confirmed Up, C/Up, situation for the first time in nearly a year. That's a good sign. So with three green lights and an UpUp situation, the Color Guard is Bullish. Therefore:

Dr. DiLiddo's Essay - Friday, February 12

A BEAR MARKET SCENARIO TO FEAR.

We track earnings, inflation and interest rate trends in the Market Climate section of these Views, and we believe that Bear markets prevail when the S&P500 Earnings trend is down. Our Earnings Trend Indicator, ETI, of S&P500 Earnings crossed below 1.00 today, issuing a Bear Market Scenario.

Dr. DiLiddo wrote in his February 12 essay, we are in a Bear Market Scenario to Fear. At that time S&P earnings were falling and they continue to fall. This is one of VectorVest's key indicators for suggesting a cautious approach. Dr. DiLiddo referred to the Fed's interest rate hike as a negative and rising gold prices and gold stocks as additional evidence and reasons to fear the bear market. On the Feb 15 market holiday, I wrote on our Blog about a bottom fishing opportunity in the U.S. and to a lesser degree in Canada, but I repeated Dr. DiLiddo's caution for the longer term.

Well, bottom fishing searches have performed extremely well since the open Feb 16. They got off to a great start for a couple of days, faltered for a few days and now they have done exceptionally well the last several days, led by gold and energy plays. During the same period, Conservative and Retirement searches such as Steady Eddies, Dividend Payers, Pale Blue Chips and Premier Growth Stocks have managed gains overall, but much smaller, less than double digit. It's been a similar story in both US and CA. Now we're into more of a trending market phase, however, MTI levels are fairly elevated, especially in Canada. Best to follow the

Comments from Victoria and Nanaimo about the Successful Investing – Level II Workshop

"I must say that I was extremely impressed with the Intermediate Seminar in Nanaimo. The content was such that I think it was of great interest to possible new subscribers and we "old timers" alike." – Joan

"Although I am a longer-term subscriber to VV (6-8 years), I still find useful kernels of info and advice from your workshops. This new format is very good and I particularly liked the MTI info in the first session and also the portfolio management/risk management portion at the end. This was a "level II" presentation, but I believe that it was very useful to newbies too." – Gerry

"Thanks again Stan for the all the great information yesterday." – Hans

"I just like to thank you for a informative and well presented Investing workshop in Nanaimo. I think this workshop will be well received across Canada. You present the material with lightness and humor that makes the workshop fun. A course well put together! My favored topic: Precision Trading using VV Graphs. So much information there. Awesome." – Werner

"This is to thank you for the presentation in Victoria yesterday. I better understood the process. I came away with a clearer understanding how the development of my YEARLY FINANCIAL PLAN should be created." – James

Stock to Study: Canadian National Railway (CNR)

User Group News

Brockville, Ontario, User Group Leader: Gary Thornhill Submitted by Member: Barry Dejong

Stock to Study: Canadian National Railway (CNR)

- As far as a group stock pick is concerned, we all agree on the merits of CNR:
- is one of 2 or 3 North American rail companies with a rising EPS
- has a lot of volume
- is held by most if not all funds managers
- trades in Canada and the US
- has shown to resist the huge market swings by not being quite as volatile
- CNR still has lots of business as the US buys a lot of our cheap oil that needs to ship by rail without the Keystone pipeline
- is an excellent stock to sell Covered Calls on if you hold the stock
- is an excellent stock to buy calls or puts on with remarkable predictability as the stock trades in a $70 - $80 range

The stock chart shows some of the indicators we use. You can see the same swings very clearly using Petra's 3&8 EMA charting method. (Replay Dec 5 Online Forum)

User Group News

Kitchener-London-Waterloo, Ontario, User Group Leader: Dave Loates

Meeting Location: Heidelberg Inn, 3006 Lobsinger Line, (R.R. #15), Heidelberg, ON

Next meeting: March 15 - 6:30 pm to 8:30 pm:

Agenda: Review on how to navigate the Home Page; Review and Update User Group Portfolio and introduce a new portfolio for the QQQ, the ETF for the Nasdaq; Member stock selections and analysis using VectorVest Graphs.

Stocks to Study: First Quantum Minerals (FM); we have been buying the stock and selling covered calls. Stock is currently overvalued, but the covered calls continue to yield a great return one strike out of the money for next month expiration. This must be monitored as it is a mining stock, and can be volatile. (Duplicate - thank you Emanuel for presentation)

Several of our members are trading NUGT/DUST ETF's on a 1 and 3 minute chart using 3 and 5-SMA's, with consistent results of 3% per day on their USD accounts.

Stock to Study: Dollarama Inc. (DOL). Keeping graph simple is very important to making good trading decisions. Too much info creates analysis paralysis. We'll use a 5-year weekly graph with EPS, RT (VECTORVEST SIMPLE LAYOUT) and a 10/40-week SMA. Put this in your WatchList and wait for the weekly MA crossover.
